

Sean Judkins

Well along my way in the yachting industry, my unwavering work ethic and commitment to learning are attributes that have been proven on the water. Having moved from the education sector, I bring a wealth of qualities integral to both domains; dependability, hard work, honesty, trustworthiness, and adaptability. I am enthusiastic about utilizing my skills in a new programme, and am confident in my ability to quickly grasp all responsibilities and apply them cooperatively within a team setting.

Although I have not worked with Sean, I have known him for a number of years, and seen his personal and professional achievements. I am confident Sean will be an asset to any team that is willing to give him his first yachting position. He is a very driven individual who is always pushing himself to excel in everything he does whether it is in his profession as an educator, as an athlete, or raising money for charity. If I had a position for Sean, I would have gladly employed him by now. I would be happy to discuss him in greater detail with any prospective employer.

I've known Sean for 14 years both on a personal level and in his previous educational roles. Sean is an outstanding person in many ways. He is hard working, professional, and good humoured. I enjoy his company immensely and I'm sure he will fit easily into any crew either on a large yacht or a smaller vessel. Sean is very intelligent and quick to learn. He is inspirational and enthusiastic and naturally encourages others to better themselves. Sean has the social skills and empathy to interact with anyone, at any level. His Spanish is excellent and he is a keen sportsman. I wouldn't hesitate to recommend Sean for a position within the yachting industry and I'm sure he will be a valuable asset to any crew. I encourage any prospective employer to contact me for a verbal reference.

His track record clearly reflects Sean's qualities: he is a very diligent, collaborative person with great initiative. He has a remarkable ability to adapt to different situations, always maintaining a pleasant and elegant manner, even in difficult circumstances. Sean is firm but fair, efficient and an exemplary professional. On a personal level, Sean is known for his spirit of solidarity, actively participating in various causes, either as a collaborator or promoter. He is an outstanding sportsman, with skills in cycling, kayaking and rugby, among other sports. His commitment to society and his willingness to participate in any initiative proposed to him are truly admirable. Full reference upon request.
